INTRODUCTION

This programme Mastering Business Administration (MBA) created and delivered by faculty at the International School of Management (ISM) London as a bespoke executive development training course is a continuous learning and management development process, not a product, for professionals across different disciplines, cadres or levels and specializations but it requires some professional experience and limited exposures to maximize its benefits. However, the modules and learning outcomes of the MBA are similar to that of a professional Master of Business Administration (MBA) degree.

In the current age of increasing emphasis on knowledge and talents; when markets and people are more interested in the ability to demonstrate knowhow and practical capacity than the number of paper certificates and their classes, Mastering Business Administration (MBA) is the contemporary short time yet scalable learning and development solution for those who require both the experience and certificate of proficiency in business development, management and general administration.

Based on its practical, action-based and experiential adult learning design, it is the ideal alternative for those professionals with little or no knowledge of management education or experience in professional management, business administration or organizational growth and development.

The MBA also serves as a refresher course for those who already earned or were unable to complete their academic degrees or those with experiences in business administration or related fields but need to update their knowledge and experiences based on the most recent research and professional practices in management and administration.

This course is necessary for most business owners and more so for those forward looking individuals who want to become their own bosses. More than the certificate alone, the ultimate benefit is the actionable learning experience and the various exchanges amongst delegates and between delegates and faculty as offered by the programme design and delivery methodology.

PROGRAMME DESIGN AND UNIQUE VALUE

We have designed the MBA as a residential programme in order to maximize the in-class and extended learning periods by reducing the interferences of daily routines and increase the learning opportunities available throughout each day (and night sometimes) of the programme.

As a fully residential programme, it promises to be a fun learning experience reminiscing years of student lives while involving good times for recreation, socializing and networking at the same time.

Two of the major highlights of the programme are the first and the last days, which are the Sunday and Friday. Sunday would witness a brief politics and power play or demonstration of leadership competencies while Friday would involve fellowship with a foreign Chamber of Commerce and Industry, special dinner, optional night out and/ or tour of a major place of heritage.

The proficiency certificates issued by the ISM London is well recognized by industry leaders and respected across nations by academic institutions, professional associations and government authorities/agencies.
